

NIRA CALEDONIA UNVEILS ITS NEWLY REFURBISHED ROOMS

May 2014: Nira Caledonia, Edinburgh has announced the completion of an extensive refurbishment programme. The renovation of the hotel's Georgian townhouses has overhauled its bedrooms and suites.

The project was overseen by one of Scotland's leading interior design agencies, Jeffreys Interiors. A key part of their brief was to revitalise the décor while retaining the hotel's renowned 'private house' atmosphere.

By contrasting rich shades such as charcoal and taupe with sharp accent colours and elegant French fabrics, the designers have successfully upheld the hotel's sense of sophistication yet providing a warm, welcoming feel. Every room and suite has been artfully curated to give an individual style, with its Christian Lacroix and Designers Guild cushions, Nobilis fur throws as well as modish armchairs and sofas used throughout to add character.

Aiming to preserve and highlight the period features of the Georgian property, the hotel's new décor presents a blend of elegant furnishings with a vintage vibe and contemporary mod cons such as plasma TVs, Nespresso machines, iPod docking stations and Wi-Fi access throughout.

Rory McAleece, GM at Nira Caledonia, comments on the refurbishment: "We are delighted to announce the refurbishment works are complete and very excited about welcoming guests to experience the hotel's new look. This renovation symbolises another milestone for Nira Caledonia and this makeover is set to ensure that the hotel maintains its rightful position as one of the finest luxury properties in Edinburgh".

The hotel's renovation along with its heartfelt service and new special offers will inspire both leisure and business travellers to experience Nira Caledonia this summer.
